

Master of Education in Classroom Leadership with a specialization in Teacher Leadership

Want to advance your career as an educator? Interested in growing your skills and your income? Get ready to do all of that and make a bigger difference in your students' lives with an online Master of Education in Classroom Leadership with a specialization in Teacher Leadership.

The Teacher Leadership specialization includes four courses within the M.Ed. in Classroom Leadership (MEDCL). The specialization in Teacher Leadership offers unique learning outcomes and field experiences that will prepare you to maximize your effectiveness as a Teacher Leader with ease and flexibility. In addition, it affords opportunities for endorsements, certificate renewal, and professional development in a faith-filled virtual environment. Get ready to make a difference in your students' lives with this specialization.

Our MEDCL degree with specialization in teacher leadership will prepare teachers who are:

- Committed to students and their learning.
- Know the subjects they teach and how to teach those subjects to students.
- Responsible for managing and monitoring student learning.
- Think systematically about their practice and learn from experience.
- Members of learning communities.
- Educational leaders who demonstrate scholarship within a Christian ethic of care
